Hosiery Always Interesting

Questions Of Colour And Style

SIMPLE, DIRECT SCHEME STANDS OUT BEST

Hosiery is always interesting. The manufacturers at last seem to have solved the important problem of fine-fashioning. We are now allowed slim ankles, even with long feet, always necessary for the average Englishwoman! Further, pleasing and practicable stockings are very moderately priced. With all black there is nothing lovelier than the transparent lace fronts and fine mesh of silk.

Palest beige-grey may also have a transparent look and fanciful stitchery. Black is only good with black. With white, the palest beige and a new "faded" linen colour should be worn.

Flesh colour has lost some of its popularity, yet these things must always depend on each other for the success of any dress scheme. There are no hard and fast rules beyond those in good taste. Try to attain a complete harmonious effect.

It is well to remember that in a galaxy of beautiful clothes a simple direct scheme will stand out best, such as all grey or all white and black.

BUTTON BEAUTY Largely Matter Of Decoration

Buttons are so largely a matter of decoration nowadays, that it is not surprising that much art is brought into play in their making.

Many of the new designs have a jewel-like beauty, as in a delicate arrangement of tiny silver flowers in crystal, the button about the size of a shilling-piece.

Small pyramid buttons in cut glass have ruby and sapphire coloured facets. Square buttons made of mirror glass are another button novelty.

Tailored Suit In Brown Linen

Belted Jacket With White Revers

SPECTATOR SPORTS MODEL SEEN IN PARIS

Brown linen is used by Rayonne of Paris, for an interestingly tailored suit, with a belted jacket showing rounded-off white linen revers over a jumper-top and straight-line skirt. The jumper has an open-work brazer strapped back and white elephant applique a pace or two from the centre-front. It is a neat spectator sports model completed by a topie softly tailored from the brown linen.

There are more elaborate styles for lawn enclosures on special days, one frock being particularly graceful and free from all sophistication. This is made on the chemise design from one of the marguerite floral prints. The finest plisse is carried on a wide panel right down the centre front and back leaving the side perfectly plain. It has a poppy red oilcloth belt.

Navy blue and white diamond patterned linen tweeds make other suits of severely cut classic trend with waistcoat fronts of white pique.

NOVEL IDEAS FOR BEACH SANDALS

Lastex Sock Keeps Out Sand

A very practical beach sandal for women who prefer to keep their toes in seclusion, and who like support for the back of the foot is made of pieces of coloured tape stitched together contiguously and tied around the ankle like ghillies. Another novelty is a sandal with cork sole and heel, a high vamp and an attached sock of lastex. The foot is slipped into sock and sandal, at once, and the sock prevents the shoe from filling with sand. Yet a third model is copied from a Guatemalan peasant shoe, and has a very low two-colour kid vamp, and a red heel that flares at the base.

NEW COATS FROM PARIS

For Youthful Wear WORN WITH FROCKS OF MAT SILK CREPE

Straight lines compete with those of bias cut from Jodelle of Paris, who also caters for youth outdoor summer sporting, back-grounds in "plains" and "florals." In the former category nothing could be better allied to pink than red, or black to white. Both of these coats are half-length, but straighter than last year's line with puffed elbow-length sleeves. Red on pink is conveyed in a fine pin-striped woollen, and the black velvet is one of the quilted varieties on white. The frocks are in mat silk crepe. This designer, however, changes the corsage theme. One is completely plain; the other has three buttons set down the centre front to match a high patent leather belt. These details match the coats.

Coats are eliminated from floral printed China and taffeta frocks, which may show open backs with bow-ties hanging from the nape or not, but elbow puff sleeves always come to just beneath the joint. An exclusive of marguerite print shows centres of vivid turquoise, lacquer-red and yellow, on a light grey ground. This is in China, while a fern leaf in grey shows up on a white taffeta ground.

FLATTERING, ALSO PRACTICAL

Three-Quarter Coats In Limp Styles

SOME LATEST IDEAS FOR EVENING WEAR

For the average Englishwoman the three-quarter or longer half-length coat is the most flattering to the figure. Especially good for the evening ensembles are these nonchalant, limp styles. Further they are very practical.

Shot taffeta seems best kept for those crisp short jaunty little coats, reserving the heavier hanging crepes and satins for the longer length. There are some lovely new limp-hanging coats in fine brocades—some of which are shot with silver or gold. Apricot or peach are favoured. Purple of a dark hue is a very good contrast to this faded spicet range.

Fashion has been for some time stressing the purple-note, yet it is not an easy colour to wear successfully, but it is appreciably assisted by pink, or indeed, also by certain shades of blue.

CHARMING LINEN ENSEMBLE

Belts Of Crushable Oilcloth

NOT WORN WITH PATTERNED FLORAL CHINE FROCKS

Beige linen with a machine stitched rib in the weave is another delightful scheme for a slack-coated tailored ensemble of skirt and blouse persuasion. The blouse is of brown linen with yellow stripes set barrel-wise round the body.

From a high front it descends to a lower back, fastened to the figure by a tie. These back ties are on belts of crushable oilcloth with button fastenings that were launched at the big spring openings in Paris. The oilcloth shows up well in dark or vivid colours on floral prints and is given additional charm when a big single disc of the same material is strung on to a cord to replace jewellery of floral persuasion from time to time. They should never be worn with floral patterned China frocks.

DOUBLE CROWNED HEADS

Hairdressing Styles To Suit Them

Some hair grows in a double crown, and then it is practically impossible to make a good side parting, for it is going against the direction of the growing hair, and the most you can do is to make a very short parting. A centre parting may get over the difficulty, but the latter is ageing and becoming only to a certain type of classical feature.

It is nearly always possible to find out the way the hair likes to lie, and if you "set" it in that direction you will have the pleasure of being able to run the comb caplessly through it, knowing that it will fall agreeably into those waves.

ELIMINATING EYE WRINKLES

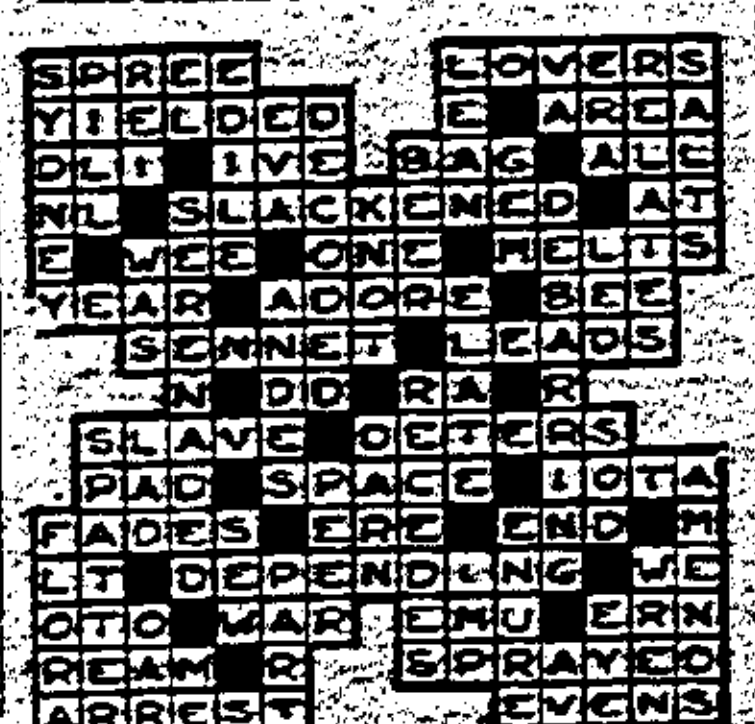

Value Of Lanoline

GOOD ALSO FOR GROWTH OF LASHES

There is nothing better for the skin round the eyes than lanoline; it also helps the lashes to grow. Squeeze a generous piece of lanoline on the finger and melt it in front of the fire, if the weather is cold then put it very gently all round the eyes. Tap and pat very very lightly with the tips of your fingers, then with the first and middle finger of one hand, open the eye wide. Eyes have a habit of getting smaller, because the eyebrows, muscles drop down, and this opening the eyes with the fingers helps to stimulate these muscles. After wards pat round the eyes again, and in this way you will work the lanoline right into any wrinkles. Leave it on all night.

In the morning bathe each eye with cold water, or with a special eye lotion that will brighten as well as cleanse them.

South, who a moment ago reached the height of joy, now tumbles into the depths of despair. North's five-heart bid, in my opinion, is very bad. Admittedly North has a much stronger hand than he has indicated up to now but it is the very strength of his own hand which should have tipped North off to the situation. North should have realised that it was impossible, with both opponents bidding, for South's terrifically strong bids to be legitimate. Either South was being very fancy and doing something very peculiar or South held a hand which was tremendously strong distributionally if played at hearts. If the latter could bid five hearts himself were the case South, of course, at any rate North should have passed and let South take whatever action he wished.

Of course, South would have doubled four spades and defeated it very badly. Instead, North played five hearts doubled and went down three tricks. South had created a tremendous swing but North's meddling put the wrong side on the receiving end. The hand, of course, as I may appear, does show some sound lessons. North's hand, which has taken control in this case, South, to keep it.

BRIDGE NOTES

BUILDING UP A SITUATION

By Ely Culbertson

The bidding of the master player sometimes seems absolutely insane to the average on-looker. I do not mean the bidding on most most hands, but the bidding which happens every now and then. There is nothing the expert enjoys so much as to try, by making certain bids, to build up a situation and thus practically direct the subsequent bids of his opponents. This fancy bidding occurs particularly in match point duplicate games when a player is willing to gamble for a top score. Even if his gamble goes wrong he can get only one bottom.

On to-day's hand, for instance, South, who was one of the nation's ranking experts, made an amazing series of bids. He decided that his best chance for a top on the board would be to get the opponents to take a costly sacrifice against a probably unmakeable game.

Everything worked out the way South wanted it to—the opponents did take the sacrifice and then fate in the form of South's partner stepped in and spoiled everything. South had fixed his opponents but he had not counted upon his partner's interference, and instead of a top score South got a bottom. Despite the difficulty of understanding South's amazing bids, I still must criticise North for interfering, as South had bid the hand in such a manner that he should have been allowed to have the final say.

1—East is too weak to make a free bid over the intervening overcall.

2—South decides to get fancy and play for a swing. He knows East to be weak and correctly deduces that his partner's overall is a strong one but that it almost surely is not strong enough to enable North and South to make a game. South decides that he may fool the opponents if by very strong bidding he contracts for a game.

The opponents in the meantime may, if taken in by South's strong bidding, decide to sacrifice in either diamonds or some other suit and be penalised. South's first step is to overcall in the opponents' bid suit. North should understand from this bid that South intends to control the bidding from now on.

East, having passed the first round, sees no reason why he should not cheaply show his suit at this point and possibly find a good way of out-bidding the opponents.

South shoots the works. He is gambling that West's holding will be weak; that the latter will be unable to double, and will decide to take spades or bid some nonsense.

West falls into South's trap. Completely misled by South's bid and South's unimpeachable very strong bidding and secondly, by the fact that South has bid five hearts, he decides that four hearts probably cannot be beaten and further that four spades will be penalised less than five hearts.

South passes.

East, at this point, is in a very bad position. He has taken control in this case, South, to keep it.

DELIGHTFUL COMEDY-DRAMA FOR THE QUEEN'S "VAGABOND LADY"

ROBERT YOUNG AND EVELYN VENABLE AT THEIR BEST

One of the most delightful comedy-dramas, "Vagabond Lady," featuring Robert Young, Evelyn Venable and Reginald Denny, will shortly be released by the Queen's Theatre.

With a tremendous apartment store as a background, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the producers, have woven a really brilliant story round a prodigal son, whose escapades in the South Seas on his pearly smack, "The Vagabond Lady," herald his return to the big city for a well-earned rest.

Robert Young, as Tony Spear, the prodigal, much to the disgust of his father and elder brother Johnny (Reginald Denny), takes great delight in annoying both by chewing gum-drops and appearing in the apartment store clad in a pair of greasy dungarees. His father's secretary (Evelyn Venable) has just consented to marry Johnny when the fun begins.

A series of vastly amusing incidents, with Evelyn's drunken father, who resents his daughter's marriage to Johnny, keeps the audience chuckling throughout, while a Cockney shipping-mate to Tony adds a real touch of the sea to the close-up preceding the climax, which takes place on Tony's smack.

The very last scene in the film, when Tony realises that he loves his brother's fiancée and snatches her from the altar by firmly convincing his brother that he does not love the girl before an entire concourse of marriage guests, provides a fitting climax to the film.

The parts are very well filled with Robert Young and Evelyn Venable at their best, while Reginald Denny, the father and the girl's father also come in for their share.

An enjoyable hour and a quarter could not be better spent than at this amusing film. The shorts which precede the film include a good Hearst's Microphone sound-news, depicting Italy's strength on the battle-field, showing flame-throwers and tanks laying smoke screens; and an uproariously funny "Our Gang" comedy.—R.G.

KIDNAPPERS WERE CAOLED FOR 20 YEARS

WEYERHAEUSER CASE SEQUEL

HUSBAND'S PLEA DISMISSED

TACOMA, To-day. Mrs. Margaret Waley has been sentenced to 20 years imprisonment.—Reuter.

A message dated June 22 stated that Herman Waley pleaded guilty to charges of kidnapping and extortion in connection with the case of the kidnapping of the son of Mr. J. Weyerhaeuser, the lumber king, but the judge refused to accept his young wife's plea after her husband had declared that she entered into the crime blindly and did not know that the house she rented at Spokane was for the purpose of concealing the Weyerhaeuser child.

A later message stated that Herman Waley was found guilty and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment.

CHARGES PREPARED

A message from Washington dated June 12 said that Mr. Edgar Hoover, in charge of the special police dealing with the eradication of the gangster menace, had announced that the suspects in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping case would be charged under the Lindbergh Kidnapping Act.

The suspects were Herman Waley and his wife Margaret, and William Mahan, the blacksmith.

$200,000 RANSOM PAID

The timber king's son was kidnapped on his way to school, and a ransom of $200,000 was demanded, which was paid, the boy's family especially asking the police not to interrupt their established connection with the kidnappers.

Later it was announced that of the $200,000 ransom money paid, $116,000 had been recovered, all the money paid to the kidnappers' agents being marked.

The money recovered included $98,000 found buried in a canyon near Salt Lake City as the result of a confession by Herman Waley.

ERRONEOUS REPORT

At Salt Lake City it was later reported, but afterwards found erroneous, that a $10 ransom bill was passed at a gasoline station at Bingham City. Floyd Anderson, operator of the station, was said to have told State deration all the information before it, the Council may see fit to take.—British Wireless Service, which, after taking into con-

60-year-old Farmer is Relieved by Kruschen

Although old age has not yet kept this man from his occupation as a farmer, rheumatism has done so recently.

"Two years ago," he writes, "I was suddenly taken with rheumatism, all down my left arm. I tried many things—all to no purpose. I then commenced taking a half-teaspoonful of Kruschen. Six days later, and soon felt better. My arm, which was painful and nearly useless, is now as good as new. I am now, after a few weeks' treatment, quite better. I am more than pleased as I am a pianist and playing made matters worse. I am just entering my 60th year, and am in good health."—G.L.A.

The six mineral salts of Kruschen have a direct effect upon the whole blood-stream, neutralising the acid which is the recognised cause of rheumatism. They also restore the eliminating organs to proper working order, and so prevent constipation, thereby checking the further formation of uric acid and other body poisons which undermine the health.

DINNER AT SAILORS' AND SOLDIERS' HOME

A farewell dinner was given last evening to Mr. W. H. Edmonds, M.B.E., who is shortly leaving Hong Kong on retirement, and Mr. A. E. Mr. Edmonds has been actively connected with the Methodist Church in Hong Kong during the last twenty-four years, for many years being Society Steward. He has also been a member of the General Committee of the new Sailors' and Soldiers' Home since its inception in 1929, where his work as convener of the Entertainment Sub-Committee has met with unqualified success.

FRENCH ECONOMY
PROGRAMMELAVAL'S PROPOSALS ARE ACCEPTED CALMLYNEW MEASURES RECOGNISED AS VITALLY NECESSARY

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Paris, To-day.
M. Laval's proposals for financial retrenchment and the restoration of budget equilibrium were accepted by the Cabinet Council early yesterday morning.
The new economy programme embraces 28 decrees intended to effect savings totalling approximately 11,000,000,000 francs, which are distributed as follows:—State budget, 7,063,000,000; amortisation department, 195,000,000; communal budgets, 1,385,000,000; railways, 2,316,000,000.
The new economy measures, which provide for retrenchment by the State, municipalities, colonies, licensed companies and public services, however, will not affect the expenditures on the public welfare—Trans-Ocean Service.

A labor message from Paris states that though it was hardly to be expected that the new emergency decrees which impose heavy sacrifices on all classes of the population, would be greeted with enthusiasm, they did not arouse as much hostility as feared on publication yesterday, being accepted on the whole with calm.
It appears, in fact, to be gradually recognised that these measures are necessary in order to reorganise the public finance and the reconstruction of industry. The reaction of the Paris Bourse was friendly, rates showing a considerable rise.

LAVAL'S SPEECH
In his speech over all French stations last evening M. Laval emphasised that the retrenchment measures will be applied immediately to the fullest possible extent and will be accompanied by energetic steps for the revival of trade.
The Government had had to choose between devaluation of the franc and taking all possible measures for its maintenance, declared the Premier, adding that the sacrifices affected all citizens in similar degree and would be automatically reduced should the situation improve—Trans-Ocean Service.

REICHSBANK RETURN
Remarkable Increase in Gold Stock
The Reichsbank return dated July 15, issued yesterday, reveals a remarkable increase in the gold stock by 8.1 million Reichsmarks to 33.9 millions, the highest gold holding for a considerable time past.
This sudden access of gold is not the result of acquisition from current commercial business, but is the outcome of a special transaction with Soviet Russia, which pays for deliveries of German industrial products by depositing gold against Reichsmarks.
The reserves of foreign currencies also increased by 2.4 to 8.4 million Reichsmarks, augmented from the same source, part of the gold received from Russia having been exchanged for foreign currencies. The total increase in the note cover was thus 12.5 to 102.3 million Reichsmarks.
The note circulation declined 74.0 to 3,665.5 million Reichsmarks. The amount of credit issued decreased by 93.9 to 4,280.7 million Reichsmarks—Trans-Ocean Service.

BERLIN SHARE MARKET
Uncertain Trend Reported
The rising tendency with which the Bourse opened yesterday soon gave way to a more uncertain trend, share prices being then rather weaker. The turnover continued very much restricted, despite the favourable impression created by the much stronger Reichsbank statement.
The change of outlook was due chiefly to the rumors that the management of the Bourse planned steps to check the present bull tendencies, while the Bankers' Association would not give any further credit for sharebuying.
Filed interest securities were also weak, the demand concentrating chiefly on industrial debentures. Call money was at 2 1/2% to 3%—Trans-Ocean Service.

CHINA MAIL SPECIAL
Berlin, To-day.
The report published in a section of the foreign press, to the effect that the German Government had recently offered the Soviet Government a loan of 1,000,000,000 marks without security in order to increase German exports to Russia in exchange for Russian raw materials, was semi-officially denied yesterday as lacking any foundation whatever.
It is stressed that apart from the German-Russian agreement of April 9 last, the granting of further German credits to the Soviet Union has never been discussed, and it goes without saying that no offer of this kind has been made—Trans-Ocean Service.

ADMINISTRATION

CLOSE VOTE IN SENATE

Washington, To-day.
Reversing Tuesday's stand the Senate voted by 44 votes to 41 to strike out the price-fixing provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Bill. The vote is regarded as a setback to the administration forces, who insisted on the retention of the price-fixing as a vital part of the bill.
The final Senate vote on the entire bill was possibly to have been taken last night—Reuter.
A message received yesterday said that the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston, by a vote of 2 to 1, had ruled that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration processing taxes were unconstitutional, the ruling being given in the case of the Hoosac Mills Corporation, New Bedford, which had been suing to recover some $32,000 worth of cotton processing taxes.
TEST CASE
The case, which was chosen as a test case for the constitutionality of the A.A.A., would be appealed against by the Government in the Supreme Court in the Autumn.

SERIES OF WEEK-END FLIGHTS

DE HAVILLAND COMET TO BE USED

London. A spectacular series of long distance "week-end return" air dashes to "keep up the prestige of British long distance flying" is planned for August by the 35-year-old British ex-war ace, Capt. Tom Campbell Black.

Black, who with C. A. Scott won the England to Australia air race in a de Havilland Comet last October, will fly to Australia and back from England to Canada, England to the Cape, and England to the Far East.

The exact destination of each hop and the order of the flights have still to be fixed, but weather and the state of his machine permitting, Black will fly during consecutive week-ends. He has not decided yet whether he will go alone or take a radio operator with him.

A "Smack" At It. The venture will cost £20,000, including the cost of the machine, a 200 h.p. two-engine, air-cooled de Havilland Comet with a range of 3,300 miles and a cruising speed of 220 m.p.h. The machine which is now being built, is expected to be ready this month.

"I think it would be a pity if Britain didn't have a smack at keeping long distance records in one of her own Comets, now that France and Portugal have bought two of the D. H. Comets made for the Australia race," said Black, who was flying a British bomber over the enemy lines at the age of 17, and has since flown the Prince of Wales on safari.

It is known that French financial interests are considering backing a French South Atlantic flight with the Comet plane, bought by France.

"Sporting Gesture" William Courtenay, British aviation expert, is organising Black's venture, which he described as a "sporting gesture."

"I hope Black will visit America," added Courtenay, "so that he can meet some of the gallant American pilots with whom we made such good friends at Mildenhall before the England to Australia race."

When asked what she thought about her husband's scheme Mrs. Campbell Black just laughed. "My husband is as safe as a bird in the air," she said.

NEW GERMAN AIRSHIP FACILITIES FOR SMOKING PATENT ASH-TRAYS

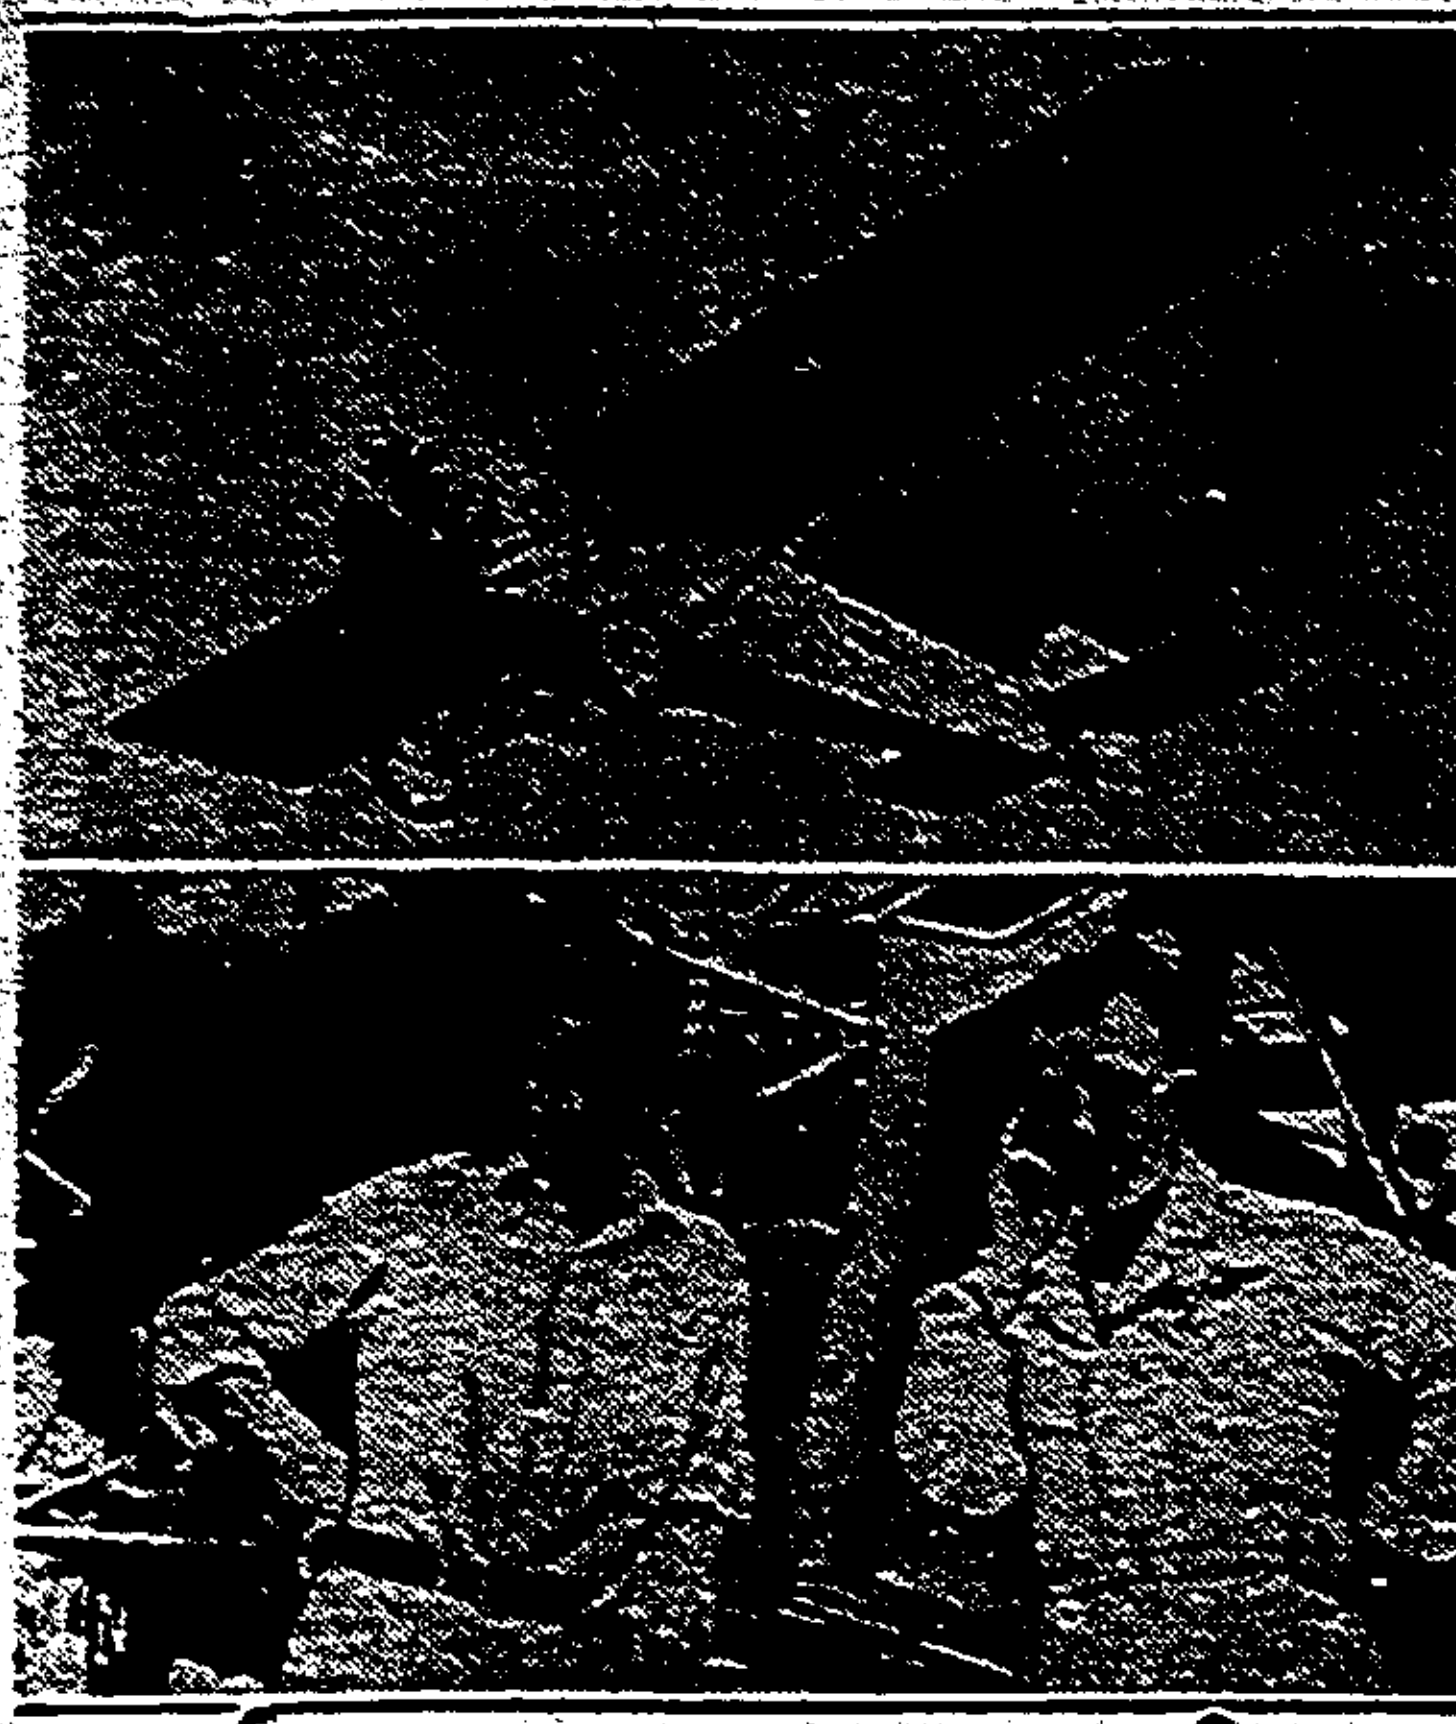

Germany's new Zeppelin, L. Z. 129, which is now nearing completion at Friedrichshafen, will not only be remarkable for the comfort of its cabins and the length of its promenade decks, but smoking will be allowed at table owing to a new patent construction of ash-trays, which will exclude all air from cigar and cigarette ends.

A grand piano has been constructed for the saloon, whose tone is alleged to be unaffected by the fact that very light metal and leather are two of the principal materials from which it has been made.

Engineers are more interested in the fact that a new apparatus has been tried out which will permit the airship to draw in water from the atmosphere should it be in need of further ballast, or, if carrying too much, to rid herself of superfluous humidity caused by atmospheric changes.

TRANS-CANADA AIRWAY Four landing fields and a radio station are planned for the New Brunswick section of the Trans-Canada airway, and it is hoped they will be available for use in the near future.

CANADIAN AIR SERVICES Air mail services in Canada are limited almost entirely to the mining areas and to remote points which lack speedy ground transport.

The flying Key brothers of Meridian, Miss. Fred (left), and Alf hoped to register a new world endurance flight mark in their monoplane "Ole Miss" shown being refuelled in flight. They took off on June 4 and easily beat the record of 553 hours.

London. A Signals Department for civil aviation was established at Croydon Airport recently the Air Ministry announces. Its principal function will be the technical administration of aeronautical radio stations in Great Britain and Northern Ireland under the control of the Air Ministry.

PROJECTED SURVEY FOR AERODROMES

Ex-Air Minister's Request

SUITABLE SITES FOR LANDING GROUNDS

London. Britain's Air Ministry is getting ready for a survey of possible air routes and of aerodromes in the country. This survey is in response to a request by the Aerodrome Owners' Association.

The Marquis of Londonderry former Minister for Air, has asked that the survey should serve as an indication of the air routes on which regular services could be flown with prospects of success. Municipal authorities which have not already done so are being urged to acquire suitable sites for their air connections before it is too costly, or even perhaps impossible to do so.

SENATE VOTE

The amendments of the A.A.A. already passed by the House, then the centre of a Senate dispute, would throw from the Courts all pending recovery suits over 160 were reported to have been filed—and prevent the filing of additional suits. Another amendment would provide, should the taxes be held to be illegal, that tax rates in future should be fixed by Congress instead of by Mr. Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, which it is held would legalise the levies.

A Washington message stated that the Senate voted by 40 votes to 38 in favour of retaining price-fixing, according to the provisions of the bill amending the Agricultural Administration Act.

A.A.A. TO CONTINUE

Washington later President Roosevelt gave an assurance yesterday that the Agricultural Administration Act would continue to function until the Supreme Court had given its final ruling on the price-fixing taxes.

The President has turned over to the Attorney General the question whether the processing taxes may be collected within the jurisdiction of the Boston Circuit Court pending the decision of the Supreme Court—Boston.

LOW PRODUCTION COSTS

DEMONSTRATION PLANE UNDERGOES TEST

POSSIBILITY DISCLOSED FOR FAMILY FLYING

Boston. FROM a furniture factory in New Hampshire has come a light sport plane which promises to give private flying a tremendous upswing in popularity. Its production may force the $700 private plane out of the Government laboratories and cause the prominent aeroplane manufacturers to develop planes in this price class.

The plane, which was test-flown at Nashua, N.H. recently by Clarence Chamberlain, is constructed of "duply" a chemically processed birchwood. Duply is the invention of Harry N. Atwood, New England aviation pioneer, and the plane which Mr. Chamberlain flew was manufactured at the French and Heald company plant at Milford, N. H. near Nashua.

Enough wood is contained in a birch tree six inches in diameter to supply material for a complete plane, Mr. Atwood said. As a result the material in the plane cost less than $60. Since duply can be moulded into any desired shape its application to plane construction radically reduces the number of parts required. The plane flown yesterday at Nashua had only seven major parts. This feature eliminates the many hours of hand labour required in ordinary plane construction, one of the principal reasons for their high cost.

2-Cylinder Engine The test plane which was about 25 feet in span was powered by a two-cylinder, 36-horsepower engine which drove the ship at an estimated speed of 120 miles an hour. The ship, a one-seater demonstrator for duply, could be sold for less than $1,000 with present facilities.

Mr. Atwood said, Professors Otto C. Koppen and Harry Newell of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, designed the duply plane. Mr. Atwood, inventor of duply, said that his company would immediately begin production of a two-place plane which would be distributed by the C. G. Taylor Aircraft Company of Bradford, Penna. makers of the "Cub" sport plane. The plane with motor will sell at under $1,000.

Later, Mr. Atwood said, his company expects to begin production of a four-place cabin family plane which will fly at 155 miles an hour and which will also sell for less than $1,000.

Clarence Chamberlain, after flying for nearly an hour in the test plane, stated that the ship handled as easily as any craft he had ever flown. Take-off and landing were made without difficulty and the plane manoeuvred easily in the air.

PRICE FIXING PROVISIONS STRUCK OUT

Meanwhile A.A.A. officials were quick to say that the ruling would not affect the immediate progress of the adjustment programmes. Even should the Supreme Court later uphold the Boston ruling the payers of processing taxes might be unable to recover, as the administration, fully aware of the possibility of an adverse Supreme Court decision, was then seeking to remove all chances to recover.

He hoped that it would receive more favourable consideration there than from the Senate Banking Committee, where similar measures were already pending. McCARRAN VOICES GRIEVANCES

A later message stated that Senator McCarran called a meeting of a dozen silver Senators, at which he voiced grievances against the silver policies of the administration and discussed generally the new legislation for a more direct mandate to the administration to continue its silver purchases until a price of $1.29 an ounce was reached.

The meeting also discussed specifically the re-framing of Mr. McCarran's amendments for a permissive silver purchase act and referring them to the Agriculture Committee of the Senate, where they were assured of an immediate favourable report.

The amendments, which had been in the hands of the Banking Committee of the Senate for weeks, would repeal the 50 per cent. tax on silver trading profits and the nationalisation of silver, and the grant of the Secretary of the Treasury to the Supreme Court—Boston.

CIRCLE FLIERS TO USE NEW PLANE ON SECOND LEG

Mishap To First Machine

LANDING GEAR COLLAPSES

Portland, Ore. Alfred P. Beck and Ahlon Kemmerer of Salt Lake City announced recently they would take off in a new plane on the second leg of their 11,000-mile circle flight of North America.

They left Salt Lake City safely, but their landing gear collapsed when they alighted at Bendleton, Ore.

Their next objective is Mt. Vernon, Wash. Their flight then will continue to Edmonton, Halifax, Miami, Havana, Yucatan, Vera Cruz, Mexico, San Diego, San Francisco, and back to Salt Lake City.

BRITISH TRADE WITH CHINA

JAPANESE COMPETITION An earlier message stated, that a deputation of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce representing the textiles, chemicals and engineering industries presented, yesterday, to the Board of Trade a report on British trade with China drawn up by the Chamber's China and Far East section, of which Sir Kenneth Stewart was Chairman.

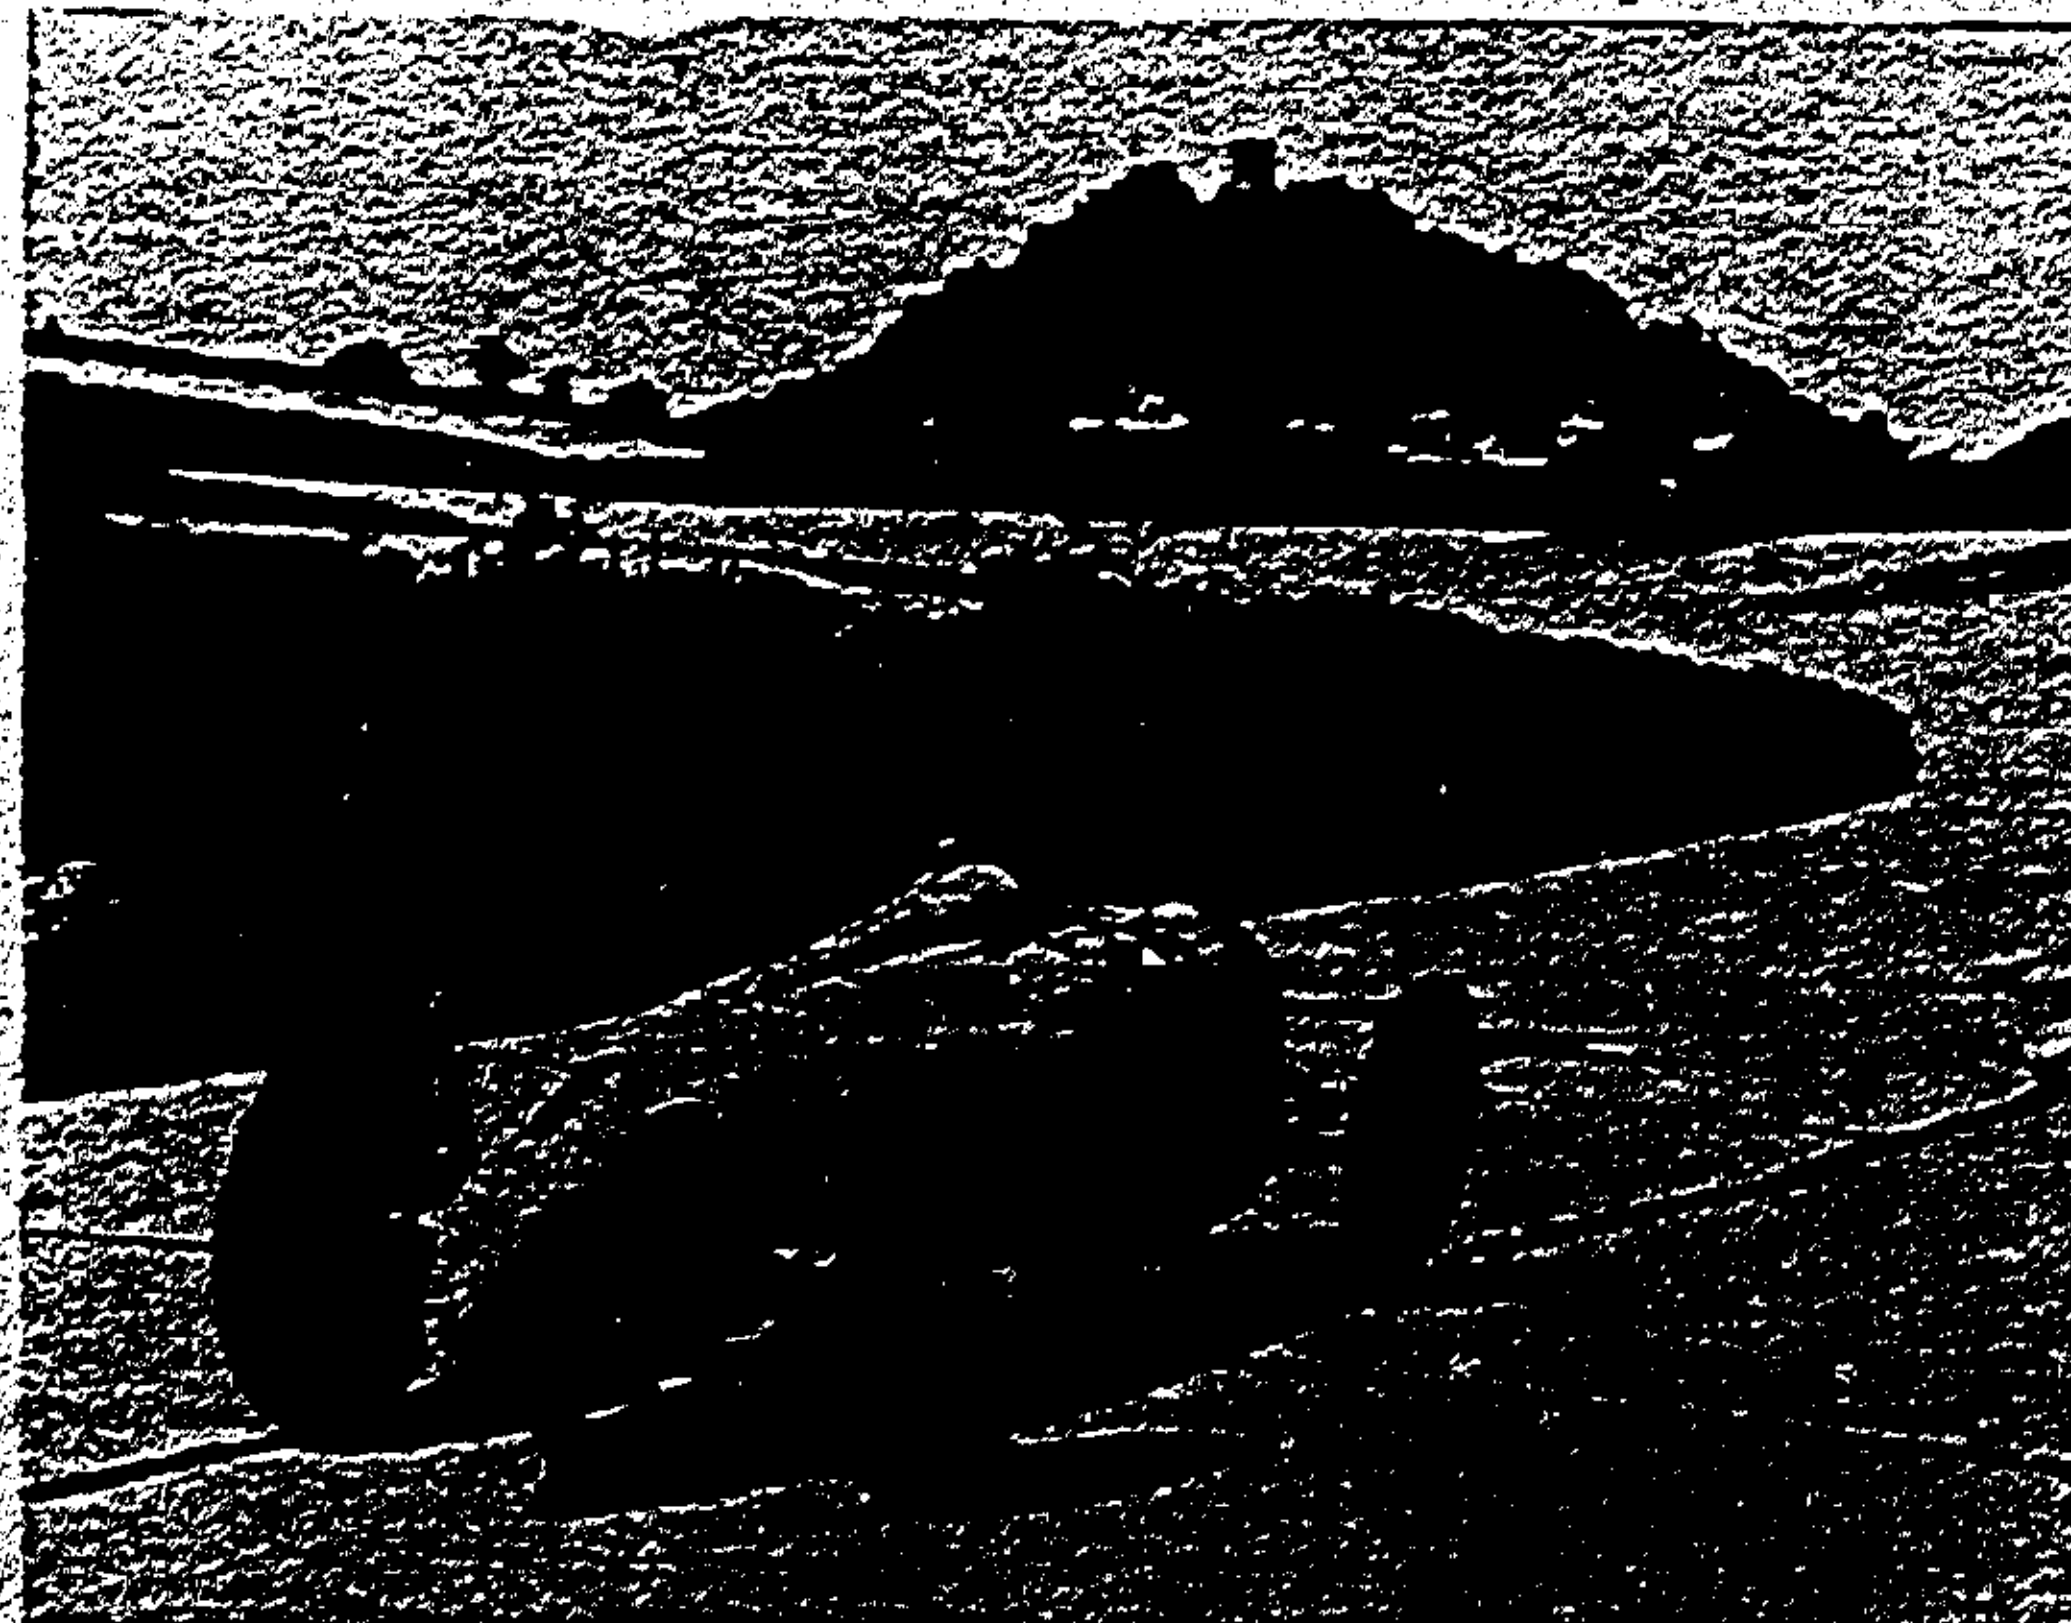

The report extensively reviewed conditions affecting British trade with China in cotton goods, chemicals and heavy industries, and discussed the future of British policy in China.

Special attention was drawn to the problem of Japanese competition. This was only one of several memoranda addressed to the Government from various influential quarters in recent months.

Chinese affairs had never been more closely watched than now. SYMPATHY WITH NANKING The progress achieved by Nanking, its financial difficulties, especially in face of Japan's forward policy, and business competition accentuated the general feeling that Great Britain's laissez faire policy in the Far East in recent years must be replaced by something more active.

Leading members of the firms doing business with China agreed that any appearance of competitiveness against Japan must be avoided, but rather that we must seek her co-operation in pursuing the welfare of the Far East, where her special interests were recognised, while it was pointed out that these can only benefit by equal recognition of other interests—Chinese and foreign alike.

London papers drew attention to the dismissal of General Maclard, the Japanese Inspector General of military training, as a victory for the moderate elements in the Japanese army, foreshadowing other disciplinary measures.

TEST TEAM BOERNS HAS ONLY BEGUN

If you think me hypercritical, imagine what these teams attempting to do last year's Australian XI on a normal wicket. As we happy thought, indeed, the truth is that England are short of class bowlers, though there are good county bowlers in abundance. We might go further and say that the cricket at Nottingham never reached higher than the intermediate levels of excellence. There was about it none of the machine-like precision or the concentrated venom which great teams produce.

It was none the less interesting for that. There is, in fact, something cold-blooded about perfection which becomes sadly monotonous. Here we have two teams in the making, and I personally enjoyed every moment of their first encounter. England are building up a side with the next Australian tour in view. So far the selectors have only put up the scaffold poles.

Too Much County Cricket?

If we are thinking of Australia we must remember also the exacting conditions of climate and circumstance under which cricket is played out there. Physique as well as performance has to be considered.

Here I must interject the suggestion that we play too much county cricket in England. There are too many county championship matches, and if it comes to that, too many counties in the championship. How can we expect our best players to retain their freshness when they turn out day after day, not during the summer alone, but in their winter tours to various corners of the Empire?

A big question, this, but it bears upon the situation. I have never been an advocate of brighter cricket. The phrase is detestable. Better cricket, yes—less stale, flat, and unprofitable batmanship, more adventure and risks, but these vigorous qualities are not easily produced by tired players.

A Useful Prop

Here again I would not generalize. Siedle's innings against England on Monday was uncommonly careful, but wholly admirable. A team can do with a prop of Siedle's calibre. And the stone-waller—I am not thinking now of Siedle—certainly has his friends.

An elderly gentleman at Nottingham helped me bear the rain with patience by his tales of the old-timers. He showed me a faded photograph. Shaw and Shrewsbury, Parr and Barlow, there they sat, small caps perched on noble heads, bewhiskered, magnificent.

"Ah, Dicky Barlow," said my friend, "he was a character. I saw him open the innings on this very ground, and carry his bat. And how many runs do you think he made? Five—Dicky Barlow made just five, not out," and he chuckled at the rich and exquisitely humorous memory.

Barlow Refused To Hit

There must have been in Barlow a strain of epic stubbornness. Neither temptation nor coercion could move him from his chosen path. He would not hit the ball, and in that refusal there was grandeur. Character, personality, call it what you will, in no game is it more important than in cricket.

We are bringing on our new personalities now. Some may be bowling at lamp-posts in the back streets of Nottingham, to-day. And all of these are bowing fast. They are the Larsons of the new era.

So it is that by their cricketing players for England the selectors set a standard which is followed right down through the county levels of the game. They can give encouragement to the stammering and unyielding county players who seem by nature to be the cricketers of the future. They can give encouragement to the stammering and unyielding county players who seem by nature to be the cricketers of the future.

Hammond Out Of Play

We must, though, remember that the selectors are not the selectors of the selectors.

The Price Of Things

"Anything," Wake said reflectively, "for a little shortage may cost me my life." After all, Ferrish had said that supply and demand were the important factors, and the financier had his $100,000 in $1,000 notes. "I'll take a note for a drink," he said.

"What! A 1,000-dollar note for a drink?"

"For a mouthwash only," said the other, coldly, "not for a drink. My water is not going like yours." "You must be mad," Ferrish exclaimed angrily.

"I agree," Wake said. "I must be mad to offer to sell any of my water at all."

The conversation ceased, but later on, before they sat down to their evening meal, Ferrish produced a leather wallet from his pocket, withdrew a note from underneath a rubber band and handed it to Wake, who took it, apparently, with great reluctance and slowly measured out a small quantity of water into an aluminium cup—sufficient to damp the tongue and roof of the mouth.

With little variation the transaction was repeated the following day, another 1,000 dollar note exchanging ownership, and again and again at closer and still closer intervals, as Ferrish's condition worsened; as frequently sometimes as ten or twelve times a day. Wake himself was very abstemious. He was in much better condition than Ferrish to undergo the experience, more used to self-denial also. But even he had periods of delusion. Ferrish would not last out long. He had spells of alternate madness and torpor.

On the fourth day from the sale of the first drop of water Wake strolled away from the plane, which was gradually sinking in and being covered by the shifting sands under the action of the desert winds. With an effort of will he counted the 1,000 dollar notes that had passed into his possession. He was right; the last one was the fiftieth. So he and Ferrish each had fifty 1,000-dollar notes now. It had been fair do's. Well, the end was very near for both. He had chanced his arm and lost. Had he got back to civilization he would have been worth $10,000 in English money. A fortune. Quite enough, at any rate, for a quiet living cheap. His himself, who had done little good for himself since the war, when he had grumbled for a time on this very desert.

He walked weakly back toward the plane, and as he did so he caught a glimpse of a file of camels and riders. Was it a vision? No; it could not be, because the camels were no longer in view. There they were again—beaver now—passing behind other things. He signalled, jumping up in the air to do so and raising his arm. He fell and picked himself up slowly. When he tried to shout no sound came.

Wake struggled on to where his companion lay in the shadow of the plane.

"We are rescued," he said, bending over Ferrish. His voice came now, but with difficulty. He looked anxiously in the direction in which he expected to see them again.

Was it after all but a vision? No. Round an adjacent dune, each picking up a little cloud of dust, came a file of camels, with their Egyptian riders, an English officer on the leading camel.

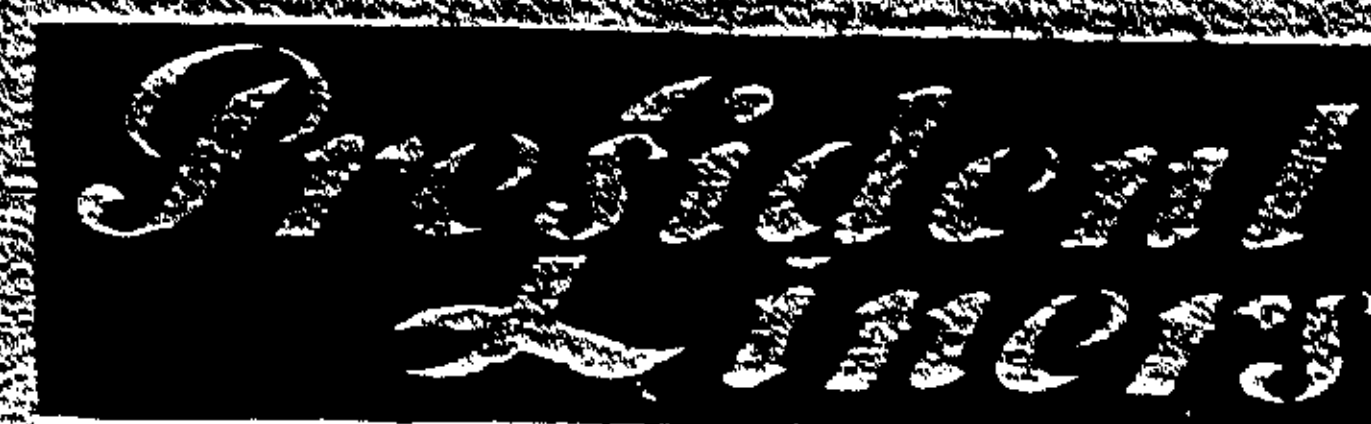

The officer held up his cane. The file halted. "Diamond—stand to your camps."

The officer approached them. Explanation followed while Ferrish lay groaning.

The desert patrol camped there that night, and in the morning came a scout and reconnaissance party, and in the afternoon a full detachment of the desert force. Wake and Ferrish had for the first time since the desert been in the company of a full detachment of the desert force. Wake and Ferrish had for the first time since the desert been in the company of a full detachment of the desert force.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST JEWS

"Irresponsible Reports" Deprecated

GERMAN PRESS INDIGNANT

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Berlin, To-day.
The newspaper Nachtausgabe expressed indignation yesterday at the "alarming and mostly exaggerated reports" published by foreign papers concerning the incidents which occurred on Monday evening in the main thoroughfare of Berlin's West-end, where a group of persons strengthened by unruly elements staged a demonstration against the presumptive behaviour of the Jews in protesting against a Swedish film which had been recommended by the German board of censorship as "politically valuable."

The paper strongly deprecates the "irresponsible reports" published abroad under such sensational headings as "Terrifying Pogroms," "Unprecedented Excesses" and similar captions.
The Nachtausgabe stresses that the papers could easily have convinced themselves from witnesses of the actual events of the rapid restoration of peace and order by the police and members of the National Socialist movement in Berlin—Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITISH FLEET PARTICIPATES IN MIMIC WARFARE

The exercises included firing at the fleet target ship Centurion and at towed targets and anti-aircraft firing at the wireless-controlled aerial target Queen Bee, which was seen for the first time by the King and Prince of Wales and the Dukes of York and Kent, who were with him on the bridge of the Victoria and Albert.
The little plane was flown off from the cruiser Achilles and put to turn, to climb or to dive on its flight towards its supposed victim, the battleship Rodney, by wireless control. It was soon "spotted" and surrounded by smoke from exploding shells, through which it moved steadily towards its objective.
When almost over the Rodney the guns registered a hit and the Queen Bee fell into the sea.
At the end of the tactical exercises the Royal Yacht steamed back to Portsmouth through two lines of ships extending for several miles—British Wireless Service.

CHINA PRESIDENT'S SON WEDS U.S. GIRL BRIDE

Ashland, Kentucky, To-day.
Mr. James Lin and Miss Viola Brown have been married by the local magistrate—Reuter.
A message received yesterday stated that Mr. James Lin, a student at Ohio State University and the son of Mr. Lin Sen, President of China, visited a 10-cent store and lost his pocket-book, which was found by an assistant, Miss Viola Brown.
Mr. Lin had then taken out a licence to marry Miss Brown. He said he had written to his parents in China and was confident that they would approve.

SECRET ORDERS IN GERMANY

Membership Of Civil Servants Examined

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL
Berlin, To-day.
Every civil servant in Germany must make a declaration on oath before September 1 as to whether he belongs or has belonged to Freemasons' lodges, other lodges or similar organisations, according to a decree just issued by the Minister of Interior, Dr. Frick. The same declaration is to be made by all candidates for positions in the civil service.
The Minister states that for the time being no action will be taken as a result of any such declarations.—Trans-Ocean Service.

SUPPRESSION OF SLAVERY

BRITAIN'S ACTION LAUDED

DEBATE IN LORDS

London, To-day.
The subject of slavery was discussed in the House of Lords last night in connection with the recent report of the Slavery Committee of the League of Nations.
Lord Cecil and the Archbishop of Canterbury paid tribute to the work of British Governments for the last 100 years and since the war at Geneva in support of the movement for the suppression of slavery.

The Archbishop complained of the need for more information from certain areas, and advocated a special agreement regarding the traffic in slaves in the territories round the Red Sea and other places. With regard to Abyssinia, he said that it was only fair to recognise that the Emperor was trying to suppress slavery there, in spite of the many difficulties.
Lord Noel Buxton and Lord Potholme spoke to the same effect in referring to their personal experiences in Abyssinia.
Replying to the debate, Lord Stanhope, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said that the Government were anxious to increase the influence and power of the League's Slavery Committee and would give to its work their fullest possible support. With regard to the Red Sea traffic, he claimed that preventive measures, in which the British forces took part, and reduced a big stream to a mere ripple—British Wireless Service.

ALIENS FINED

Changes Of Address Not Notified

Yoshida Rim, a Japanese dress-maker, was this morning fined $15 by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court for failing to notify the Police of her change of address, she being an alien.
Li Van Thuyet, an Annamite, who was charged with failing to notify a change of address and to inform the police of his arrival in and departure from the colony, was fined $10 on each count at the same court.

MID-NIGHT-ALARMS AT ACADEMY

Superstitious cadets believe that the unearthly moaning heard at night is a sign of impending active service. Even some soldiers billeted in the Academy saw that an army was advancing towards them one night. The phlegmatic ones declared, however, that they neither heard nor saw anything. A similar alarm happened a year ago, but nothing happened afterward.
